TWO AIRMEN ASCEND STARRY REALM

TRAGEDY IN MID AIR SEEN BY THOUSANDS AT BUENOS AIRES

Honors of Heroes To Be Paid Americans In the Capital of Argentine—Planes Crash During Maneuver and Volo-plane To the Earth—Lives of Captain Woolsey and Lieut. Benton Sacrificed To Science—Victims Stunned and Unable To Use Parachute—Remainder of Trip To Be Negotiated.

The war department Sunday cabled orders to the Pan-American good-will fliers, whose sky cruise around South America met with disaster in the death of two fliers and destruction of two planes at Buenos Aires Saturday to continue the flight.

This action was taken upon receipt of a cabled plea from Major Herbert A. Dargue, commander of the expedition, who escaped death by a parachute leap when his plane collided with that in which the two fliers lost their lives.

Heartbroken over the loss of his two comrades, but ready to "carry on," he cabled H. Trumee Davison, assistant secretary of war, in charge of aviation, for permission to uphold the best traditions of the army aid service and continue the flight. This was granted Saturday afternoon after Secretary Davison, Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service and Brigadier General J. E. Fechet, assistant chief, conducted a long conference.

They had before them the official report of Major Dargue, apparently unhurt after the collision in the air and his leap to the earth in a parachute.

Major Dargue said he believed that Captain Clinton F. Woolsey and Lieutenant John W. Benton, who were flying the "Detroit" when the crash came, probably were knocked unconscious and so were unable to use their parachutes. Major Dargue and Lieutenant Ennis S. Whitehead, flying the "New York" leaped to safety.

The war department explanation of the mishap as gathered from Major Dargue's report was:

"The planes were flying in formation, one leading, one to the right, one to the left of the leader a short distance behind and above, the fourth plane further back and following the leader.

"Major Dargue in the front plane gave the agreed signal to break formation and land. This was understood. The planes behind and to his right and left obeyed, one turning out to the right, the 'Detroit' to the left.

"In this maneuver the hull of Captain Woolsey's plane evidently hid from him the plane 'New York,' which was at a slightly lower altitude, and turning to the right as he started his glide to land, the nose of his plane struck the 'New York.'

"The planes, each traveling at least 100 miles an hour, locked together and were out of control.

"The shock of the collision evidently stunned Captain Woolsey, who did not leave the plane. Lieutenant Benton, the other occupant of Captain Woolsey's plane, may likewise have been thus incapacitated, as he made no effort to leave the plane, but was thrown from it just before it hit the ground.

"Major Dargue and Lieutenant Whitehead jumped from their plane, their parachutes functioning perfectly, and they landed safely."

Also early reports states that one parachute failed to open, this is shown by Major Dargue's cable to have been incoherent. It is certain that neither Captain Woolsey nor Lieutenant Benton attempted to use their parachutes.

Major Dargue will pilot one of the two remaining planes with him back to the states. There now are three planes left of the five which until Saturday had made such a marvelous record on their round South America flight.

Two of these are at Buenos Aires. The other is in Chile. There are two pilots for each plane. The disaster leaves six pilots for the two planes at Buenos Aires, so two will be eliminated so that Dargue and Lieutenant Whitehead may continue the flight. The two eliminated will return to the United States by steamship.

E. M. Crabtree, an employee of Sturm & Dillard, was injured Monday morning at Bells Siding. Mr. Crabtree was handling railroad ties. One of the ties struck him on the left shoulder, breaking the shoulder blade. The injured man was brought to this city and was taken to the office of Dr. Courtright where the injury was X-Rayed and the fractured bone reset.

M. K. DRESBACH

Died At His Home In Sunbury—Funeral Services and Burial at Whisler.

Milton K. Dresbach died at his home in Sunbury last Wednesday, aged 67 years. He was born near Kingston, Ross county.

The deceased was a son of William and Elizabeth Dresbach. He married Miss Alice Ross, who with one son, Fred Dresbach, of Columbus, survive. He leaves two sisters; Mrs. Elizabeth Wood, of Kingston, and Mrs. Mary Morrison, of Ashville.

Mr. Dresbach was a member of the order of Odd Fellows.

The funeral services and burial were held Sunday at Whisler.

Authorship Unknown

It is not known definitely who wrote "The Girl I Left Behind Me" or the year in which it first appeared. It was sung so long ago as in 1700.

Merchants From Thirty-Six States in Conference

Two thousand merchants from thirty-six states met in Chicago for their eleventh semiannual convention. Many of them were women. Four of these are here seen; left to right: Miss Mary Suttor, Spaulding, Ohio; Miss Rebecca Baker, Traer, Iowa; Mrs. Cora Roberts, Marquette, Mich.; and Miss Lonie Rose, Oshkosh, Wis.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Cleveland—A man and two women were in Fairview village jail today for arraignment before Mayor D. J. Zinnen following liquor raids over weekend by county detectives and deputy sheriffs.

Columbus —In an attack on President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, Thomas E. Dye, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee charged that the veto is the "Defy of the special privilege group to the farmers" and said that the president either has a "lack of conception of the farmers' economic trouble or is not sincerely interested in the farmers."

London — Charges are expected to be filed today against Melvin Turner, in connection with the killing last December of Henry Beathard 80, Mt. Sterling marshal. Turner, the murder victim's step-son, who has been held in jail since Beathard's death, told police he found Beathard in his home, his head battered and his empty pocketbook lying near the body.

Wooster — Charles Leiter, 20, Toledo, went on trial today, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Anthony J. Hoelzie, Pittsburgh. Hoelzie was killed on the Lincoln highway near Wooster last August when his automobile collided with that driven by Leiter. The state expects to produce witnesses who will testify Leiter's car was traveling 60 miles an hour.

Cleveland — Two more warrants are expected to be issued in the federal investigation of alleged misappropriation of government National Guard payrolls, according to word from the office of A. E. Bernstein, district attorney.

SHERIFF'S FATHER DEAD.

Edward Davis died at noon today at his home in Pickaway township. The deceased was the father of Sheriff Frank Davis.

A full obituary will be given of the deceased in Tuesday's daily. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

FIRE DESTROYS LONGENBAUGH'S BARN ASHVILLE

Early Morning Blaze Consumes Bates and Rodgers Camp and Headquarters.

At 2 o'clock Monday morning the building owned by Mrs. Enos Longenbaugh, just west of the traction station in Ashville was discovered to be on fire and before the department arrived the building was a mass of flames. The department made a run but was hindered in reaching the burning building by a long Norfolk & Western railroad freight train, which gave the blaze a good start and the structure was entirely destroyed.

The building was 100 by 50 feet and it was erected some years ago by Mr. Longenbaugh and was used recently by James Lutz as a blacksmith and painting shop. When the Chesapeake & Hocking railroad contractors came to the village, it was leased to Bates and Rodgers, railroad contractors, as camp headquarters. The building was remodeled, two floors put in, and the upper portion was used as sleeping quarters for employees and the lower portion for the storing of tools and an office. Nearly $1,000 was spent in remodeling. All bedding, furniture, tools and office supplies were destroyed. It is thought that the fire started from an overheated stove, the pipes from the stoves being stuck thru the frame building. The employees escaped, a number losing their shoes. It is understood the loss is total, as no insurance was carried on the building or contents.

BIBICAL PAGEANT.

The Biblical pageant will be presented at the Lutheran church tonight and Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.

River Wilds of Peru to

Be Surveyed From Air

Washington.—Unknown regions of the Amazon river wilds in Peru are to be surveyed from the air by pilots operating a fleet of passenger and mail carrying machines, orders for which soon will be placed in this country by Commander H. B. Grow of the American naval mission assigned to Peru.

Commander Grow announced here that he would place orders for six airplanes with American manufacturers for delivery in Peru by July.

"Aerial mapping of the region," he said, "probably will uncover areas of oil, gold and agriculture lands."

MAYOR'S COURT

David Ford and Thomas Flick railroad employes and Lefe Eby, of Lovers' Lane, were placed under arrest Sunday by Chief of Police Warner and were placed in the city lock up over night and slated intoxicated. The prisoners appeared before Mayor Fitzpatrick Monday morning and each was handed a fine of $10 and costs, which they paid and were discharged.

A man was brought in Saturday afternoon by Officers Warner and McCrady from the section north of Beantown. He was lying along the Norfolk & Western railroad, and was so drunk he could not stand up. He was kept overnight and discharged Sunday morning.

BLACKMAILED

Fulton R. Gordon, millionaire Washington realty operator, reported to a police that he had received threatening letters, advising him that he would be safe in the future only if he left $10,000 in a designated spot on Monroe street. Gordon, fifty-eight, recently married Ellen Gray, twenty-six, a nurse.

Announces Own Death

Breslau, Germany.—In an effort to cover her tracks, Elfriede Hencke, twenty-four-year-old secretary, wanted by the police for forgery and swindle, had a conspicuous notice of her death inserted in a local newspaper.

Still They Come

Washington.—Radio broadcast stations keep on growing in number. The last compilation showed approximately 650 in the United States.

Earliest Street Cars

Street cars were introduced in the United States in New York city in 1833, according to Liberty.

Avoid Disappointing It
 "The immoderate use of chewing gum may lead to stomach disorders," says a physician. This is easily understandable. When the jaws begin to work the stomach naturally looks for something to come down, and gets peeved if it doesn't.—Boston Transcript.

Your Engine Is No Exception.
 As it grows older it will wear. As it wears it needs a new lubrication diagnosis. Give it an oil of more body. Sinclair provides in the line of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils several different grades of oils to serve the various clearances and degrees of wear encountered in all engines. Why not drive in and consult the Sinclair Recommendation Index, perhaps there is a grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil better for your engine than the one you are now using.

GYPSY'S BELIEF IN VIRTUES OF WATER

The gypsy believes firmly in the curative qualities of water. When a child is born it is immediately immersed in running water and it is given water to drink before it is put in its mother's care. If a gypsy becomes ill, he is given water—cold water, hot water, water all the time, water to cure the headache, water to cure rheumatism and all old-age complaints. Water is used also to cure the ill of horses, cattle and sheep. Even their incantations for happiness, their love potions and hate potions are all water. Water is their religion, their witchcraft. The gypsies move from place to place seeking better and better water. They use no drugs; not even herbs, dried or boiled. Next to water, their other remedy is fat—lard, grease or butter. They apply that to wounds after washing them. —Hygeia Magazine.

With the Help of His Sisters

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

"THE trouble with you, Ken," cried Kenneth's sister Jane, "is that you want the moon!"

"Exactly," chimed in his other sister Carlotta. "You have a limousine appetite on a flower purse. If you'd only pick one of our crowd to take around instead of Miss Highly-tighty Vandeeveer, you wouldn't have to bother with taxi bills and orchid bouquets."

Left alone, the two girls discussed the situation with the frankness of extreme youth.

"You know she's just keeping Ken dangling," declared Carlotta bitterly. "When Polly Vandeeveer gets through with Ken she'll simply discard him as she does last week's hat!"

"I know," agreed Jane. "Ken's such a good looking and peach of a fox trotter, and all that. But if there were anyone else around—"

Carlotta grasped her sister's arm. "I've an idea!" she cried. "Let's have a party and introduce her to Mr. Van Dyke Beard next door. They're two of a kind and if they should fall for each other, it might, so to speak, release our Ken."

"Think he'll come?" asked Jane. "Come? Of course, he'll come if we tell him we're going to have French ice cream with strawberry marshmallow sauce!"

As a matter of fact, it wasn't their next-door neighbor who hesitated to accept the invitation to the Misses Malcolm's lawn party. Mr. Jonathan Barnes—his name was not actually Mr. Van Dyke Beard, he merely wore one—declared at once his pleasure in being asked and his intention of coming.

It was Ken who introduced difficulties. At first, he flatly refused.

"Nothing doing!" he said. "Hate parties myself, and so does Polly. You think she's snobbish, but I tell you she's just plain shy."

"I guess she'd come quick enough," snapped Jane meantly, "if you told her that the well known portrait painter, who has been secluding himself all summer, has decided to come out of his shell and show himself. None other than Jonathan Barnes!"

"Think so?" retorted Ken. "All right. I'll tell her he's to be here and you see if it doesn't make her stay away all the more!"

Poor Ken! It was with a hurt and bewildered air that, on the following day, he meekly sought his sisters.

"You win," he said. "I don't understand it myself, but when I told Polly about your old artist she said to tell you she'd be simply delighted to come. Girls are certainly darn queer!"

Jane and Carlotta exchanged glances. Clever little matchmakers they thought themselves.

They fairly spread themselves for the garden party in the way of decorations, refreshments, entertainment. Secretly, each felt she was assisting in the noble work of snatching a beloved brother from the arms of a Cicee and, at the same time, getting a mighty lot of fun out of it.

Kenneth, morose and unhappy, had gone after Polly and his heart fairly quivered when he saw what a lovely vision she was in yellow crepe de chine and wide-brimmed yellow hat. What man, artist or otherwise, that would not be smitten dumb at sight of Polly?

Jane introduced Mr. Barnes to Miss Vandeeveer, while Carlotta of choice and Kenneth of necessity remained in the background. But all three of them were thunderstruck by the words with which the other two greeted one another.

"So you do remember me—" "Three years ago at Wake Robin Lodge—"

Jane and Carlotta left them and, when hidden by a clump of syringas, hugged one another.

"It's Fate!" said Jane. "Who would have dreamed they had already met! Our work is half done! Poor Ken!" cried Carlotta.

They decided they must be very kind to poor Ken. He would need their sympathy, even if, in the end, it was the very best thing that could happen to him, to be jilted by a Vandeeveer, and left free for some girl of simpler tastes. Carlotta had a friend coming to visit her—a nice, domestic little thing.

When Ken came back from taking Polly home, he heard his sisters talking in the couch hammock.

"Congratulations on your party, girls," he said pleasantly.

"Thanks," said Jane.

"Congratulations me, too," he said gaily.

"You, Ken?" This from both girls. "Exactly! You know, I've been wanting to get a definite answer from Polly for ages, but she's held off and I just learned why. Seems three summers ago she had a crush on a man. She was just a kid, but she kept wondering if it was the real thing and if she ever saw him again if she'd feel the same way. Well, she's seen him, and says she wouldn't marry him if he was the last man on earth! You know who I mean. Our neighbor—the artist!"

"Mr. Van Dyke Beard!"

"I'll be jiggered!"

"Yes," said Kenneth. "So, thanks to you, I've got—"

"Your limousine!" said Jane in a funny little voice.

"Exactly," said Kenneth calmly.

"Thanks to us!" said Carlotta. "Oh, Jane!"

OLD STANDBY CLOVERS

Are Best For Ohio Says Agronomist At Experiment Station.

Ohio farmers will do well to stick to the old standby clovers for the spring seeding. The present high price of red and alsike clover seed should not induce farmers to buy seed of such poorly adapted legumes as Dalea, Japan, crimson and bur clover. These are sure to be failures when used in Ohio as substitutes for our common clovers, says L. E. Thatcher, associate agronomist at the Ohio Experiment Station.

Dalea or Wood's clover is an annual legume widely advertised for green manuring, but is unpalatable to livestock and cannot be used for pasture or hay. It may have some advantages as a plow down crop on acid soil. Soybeans are likely to prove more desirable for plowing down.

Japan clover is proving valuable for soil improvement in the southern half of the corn belt, but it has little to recommend it for Ohio. It may have some value for improving hill pastures in southern Ohio counties where it is now found to a limited extent; it is clearly unadapted to other parts of the State.

Crimson clover produces a scanty growth when seeded in the spring and is killed the following winter. Even summer seedlings are likely to be winter killed in Ohio.

Bur clover cannot be grown in Ohio with any degree of success, as it is a southern plant adapted to the cotton belt.

A seed mixture of 3 or 4 pounds of red clover, 1 or 2 alsike, 3 or 4 alfalfa, and 3 or 4 of timothy, per acre is recommended by the Ohio Experiment Station for land that has been limed sufficiently to grow alfalfa. On thin acid soil mammoth clover, alsike, and timothy should make up the bulk of the seed mixture.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

MANY MINDS

"On those occasions when we fail to understand existing phenomena the lack should be laid to a failure to understand, which the future may clear up, and we should not allow ourselves to prostitute intelligence by talking about fairies, ghosts, spirits and reincarnation of the dead." —Dr. William J. Mayo, world-famous surgeon, in an address at the University of Minnesota.

"Straight thinking on the part of parents concerning results of law violation is the most powerful factor in reducing the amount of drinking * * * The ultimate effect (of prohibition) will be fine for the younger generation. Women do not drink any more than they did before the Eighteenth amendment, and very few homes that did not have liquor before its passing have it now." —Mrs. Mabel Wiliebrandt, assistant attorney general of U. S.

"No satisfaction—at least no enduring satisfaction—can be obtained by the slogan: 'What is there in it for me?' The greatest element of success and satisfaction you can get is from the slogan: 'What is the best I can do?' "—James Couzens, U. S. Tp.

senator and financier.

"Religion is the cheapest commodity today for a large majority of Christians. * * * It costs more to own and keep up an automobile in this modern age than it does to belong to the church. Recreation for the average man is many times more expensive than is his Christianity."—Rt. Rev. C. E. Woodcock, Episcopal bishop of Kentucky.

Treasures From Tomb

In Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb at Luxor some interesting new finds have been made. They include sets of royal robes richly ornamented with gold and precious stones. More than 20 golden statuettes averaging 12 inches in height and depicting male figures in various attitudes and 6 wooden models of state barges fully manned with carved figures. Some caskets were also found consisting of 3 outer shell-cases with the innermost case. These are similar to the series of coffin shells which enclosed the royal mummy.

WILL PROSE- CUTE TOURISTS

Washington, Feb. 25.—Tourists who contemplate visiting Canada during the coming summer season were warned today by the treasury that all automobiles will be searched carefully for liquor. Customs authorities were notified to give returning tourists a chance to "declare their liquor." If a tourist admits he has liquor he loses it; if he denies carrying contraband and an inspection discloses the wet goods he must pay $5 a bottle. He will not be prosecuted, however.

Tourists or others caught with more than 12 quarts of liquor will be deemed bootleggers and will face confiscation not only of the liquor and their automobile, but prosecution.

About 2,500,000 American automobiles are expected to visit Canada this year.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Poverty works wonders, at that. It makes distant relatives close.

Note to the Dominions:—They also serve who only stand and say, "Atta boy!"

Virtue pays! "The 'S' is crooked, but look what a straight and narrow path does for it:—$."

"Yes men" aren't new. Said Emerson in 1833:—"I like the sayers of No better than the sayers of 'Yes.'"

The final test of geniality is the ability to disagree without being disagreeable.

It seems strange. There are so few one-eyed men, and yet so many ladies equipped with umbrellas.

Evolution:—What can we get out of China? When shall we get out of China? How can we get out of China?

As to memory training, you may forget to pay the grocer, but you never forget to stop for your pay envelope.

Still, it's just as good manners to pick up the last bit of lettuce with your fingers as to chase it with a fork and cuss it.

The Four Things That Matter.

There are four qualities we look for in a motor oil:

1. It must give perfect lubrication.
2. It must leave the engine in clean condition.
3. It must be economical to use.
4. It must be free from impurities that damage the engine.

On these four counts we have chosen Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils and recommend them to our customers.

Organized for Uplift of Christian Ideals

The Hi-Y club is an organization of purposeful older high-school boys who are seeking Christian ideals for themselves and for the social group of which they are a part. The first high-school association of which there is record was at Iola, Mich., organized in 1870. This association included boys and girls and existed for only two or three years. In 1889 at Chapman, Kan., among the boys of the country high school, there was organized the first high-school Young Men's Christian association that has had a continuous existence. This organization is now an affiliated Hi-Y club and has maintained a continuous service. Later, city associations developed what were quite generally called high-school boys' clubs, often called "Bean Clubs" because of the main article of food used at their suppers. For some years the statement has been made that the term "Hi-Y Club" was used first by the West side branch of the Cleveland (Ohio) association.

Proud of Her Scars

Being scratched by the cat was a matter of pride to Jean, age five, for she bragged, "Now I have all kinds of hurts."

And on being asked whether the cat should be shot she replied, "Why no. I like her too much."

About the same time her sister, Clara Jane, had a bad cold and sore throat. She was put to bed and the following morning her mother asked, "Do you feel better?"

"Mother," she replied, "did you expect me to feel worse this morning? Well, I aren't. I feel wonderful."

Criticisms Object

The legitimate aim of criticism is to direct attention to the excellent. The bad will dig its own grave, and the imperfect may safely be left to that final neglect from which no amount of present undeserved popularity can rescue it.—Bovee.

Joseph W. Adkins,

ACQUIRED SIX WIVES; YOUTH HELD INSANE

Scion of Wealthy Family Victim of Leisure.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Married six times during the last year and a half without having obtained a divorce, Thomas W. Wharton, twenty-three years old and scion of a wealthy Texas family, has been declared insane by a jury, which recommended incarceration in an asylum. Wharton is a son of A. B. Wharton and a grandson of W. T. Waggoner, multimillionaire banker and rancher.

Both father and grandfather were in the courtroom of Judge Emmett Moore when the jury returned its verdict. Attorneys and physicians had been employed by the family in its effort to prove that the young man is mentally unsound. His mother was the late Electra Waggoner Wharton, several times married and divorced. Only a few days ago Mrs. Doris Edna Day of Abilene, Texas, latest of his six wives, filed a suit against Wharton for $150,000 damages.

Testimony developed that Wharton's first marriage was to a California girl in 1925, whose name was not disclosed, while the other marriages were to Isa Riley, June 1, 1926, at Palm Beach, Fla.; Mary Melton, November 9, 1926, at Dallas; Irene Rolfe November 24, 1926, at Bartlesville, Okla.; Leora Murray, October 15, 1925, Colorado Springs, Col.; Doris Edna Day, December 4, 1926, at Abilene.

Unmoved by Trial.

Young Wharton, appearing at least ten years older than his twenty-three years, apparently took little interest in the proceedings and was unmoved when the verdict was returned. Testimony by Drs. Henry T. Smith, Jack H. McLean, Wilmer Allison and R. O. Branswell was to the effect that Wharton had become mentally deranged through excessive use of liquor and frequent participation in wild parties.

"Up to the time Tom was fifteen years old he was one of the brightest, healthiest and handsomest boys I ever saw," Doctor McLean said on the stand. "But two years ago his condition became terrible and he has grown worse. His emotions are developed far beyond his intellect and will power and his condition is directly traceable to his excesses."

"The great trouble with this young man," the doctor testified, "is that he has never had anything to do. He was like any other boy, with a lot of energy and ambition, but since he was not put to work he expended his surplus energy in a dissolute life and this is the result. He was given an unlimited expense account and all he had to do was to kill time and spend a fortune any way he pleased." So he isn't altogether to blame. It is this very thing that is America's greatest problem today, but if wealthy parents won't make their sons work, nothing can be done about it."

Grandfather Big Rancher.

W. T. Waggoner, the grandfather, owns one of the largest ranches in Texas and early in life knew what it was to be poor and to work hard for a living. Oil wells, located on his ranches, have made him a millionaire many times over. The family owns two of Fort Worth's skyscrapers.

When young Wharton's mother died several months ago in New York, members of the Wharton family employed a special train to make the trip to New York to reach her bedside before death.

China Shy of Machines; Hires Men for All Work

Peking.—Labor-saving devices are scarce in China, where manpower is abundant and wages low.

Two men working with a large, two-handled saw, will spend a day cutting one plank from a rough fifteen-foot timber. A mechanical saw, which would do the job in a matter of minutes, is looked upon with disfavor by the Chinese employer.

Peking's streets are sprinkled the year round by men with tubs and shallow bamboo baskets on the end of a pole. They have been sprinkled in that manner for generations from wells at intervals along the streets. Thousands of men would be thrown out of work if modern methods were substituted for the old practice.

The jinricksha pullers' guild and the wheelbarrow-pushing water peddlers oppose the encroachments of street cars and waterworks upon their business.

Four Sets of Twins Born Out of Total of 23 Births

Moberly, Mo.—A new record for a rural community like this one was established in November when four sets of twins were born out of a total of 23 births, breaking all previous records along that line. The twins were born to Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Grove, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Bloss, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Benton.

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT SUCCESSFUL

Brust, Monroe; Noble, Williamsport; D. Justus, Saltcreek; D. Anderson, Pickaway; Allen, Walnut; Fausnaugh Walnut; Schlager, Ashville.

All the best guards in the county are named in the three teams given above. The county this year could boast of only four excellent guards. This lack of guards was overbalanced by the exceptionally large number of good forwards, which accounts in part for the large scores.

Muhlenberg and Monroe girls have developed a splendid offense with their girls, but lack in defense. Williamsport girls, on the other hand, have the best defensive team in the county, but lack the offense. Muhlenberg or Monroe with Williamsport's guards would make a combination rarely seen in basketball.

The same thing is true of the boys' teams, except good guards are fewer. Birkhead and Curry are above the average, and are two of the best guards seen this year. The other guards in the county are average or lower. The forwards are numerous. Kirk, Trego, Vincent, Enochs and Davis are an excellent quintet.

Interesting Sidelights

There were twelve boys' teams and eleven girls' teams entered. Twenty-three games were played. The drawings for places in this year's tournament were made by the superintendents or their respective. There were two drawings, the first to see in what order the final drawing would be made. This presented a plan in which there was no opportunity for comment on the combinations resulting. Drawings were held for the boys and then for the girls'. Every game but one started on scheduled time this year. The schedule was planned by Mr. Warren for a six session tournament and was planned to give every team an equal chance in the time and amount of playing, not overcrowding any one team, and giving all an equal physical chance. The plan worked successfully.

Various teams presented interesting line-ups. Jackson and Monroe each presented twins on their teams, that could only be told apart by their numbers. Atlanta presented us with the three Hoskins sisters, all playing guard. Williamsport, Pickaway and Ashville played sisters on their teams. New Holland was the only boys team to have brothers playing at the same time. The Vincents are still supplying New Holland with good basketball players.

The finals were—Monroe Girls, 16; Muhlenberg 9; New Holland Boys, 24; Scioto 18; Monroe Boys, 15; Williamsport 13, (for third place).

Mr. Dyer is coach at Monroe; Mrs. Morrison at Muhlenberg; Mr. Schaaf at New Holland; Mr. McCoy at Scioto and Mr. Copeland at Williamsport.

It would be unfair to the teams of the county, and their coaches, not to mention that sportsmanship of the higher type was evident in every game and so long as such sportsmanship is taught basketball will be worth while. Mr. Waite and Mr. Taggett, he referees, were not slow to praise the teams because of their splendid work, cooperation, and sportsmanship. Such comment has been the aim to be reached by every person connected with basketball in the county.

Fastidious Pup

Joe Leftwich of Glasgow, Ky., thinks his "Toots" is the smartest dog in the world. Toots has been provided with a miniature bed, including tick, blanket and other covers and refuses to retire at night until the covers have been turned down for her. Recently, according to Leftwich, Toots wouldn't go to bed and trotted back and forth, whining. Investigation revealed that there was a flea in the bed. After the insect had been killed, Toots retired for the night.—Indianapolis News.

Romany Marriages

Jumping over a broomstick is the only marriage ceremony under Romany law. This was explained by an aged gypsy woman, who applied at Fareham for a pension, when asked to produce her birth and marriage certificates. "My husband and I have lived happily as man and wife for over fifty years," she said proudly. The old lady's application for a pension was granted.

Chinese Filial Love

A Chinese merchant, who was found guilty of setting fire to his shop and then collecting insurance on it, is at present undergoing a three-year sentence of hard labor at the Harbin jail. Recently his seventeen-year-old son asked the authorities to let him take his father's place as the latter's health was failing. Although this petition was rejected, the father was transferred to the prison hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union-Herald:—Joshua, son of William and Ann Mariah Hill, was born March 26, 1862, departed this life February 12, 1927, aged 64 years, ten months and 16 days.

He was united in marriage to Lydia Beavers February 11, 1883, to which union was born five sons and three daughters all of whom are living.

He united with the M. E. church at Commercial Point about 26 years ago under the pastorate of Rev. A. R. Henderson, later transferring his membership to the Harrisburg M. E. church and from there to the Orient church having remained faithful to his vows to the last.

He was a good neighbor, a lover of his home and always kind, pleasant and helpful to his family. For more than three years he had been in very poor health yet he bore his sufferings with patience, expressing himself ready and willing to answer the final summons. He leaves a wife, eight children, 15 grandchildren, eight brothers, one sister, many other relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

Card of Thanks.

We take this means to express our sincere thanks to all who in any way showed their sympathy and gave their help in his last sickness and after the death of our husband and father.

OATS WITH CORN MAKE EXCELLENT HOG FEED.

Oats can sometimes be used to advantage in limited quantities for fattening pigs, says W. L. Robison, assistant in animal industry at the Ohio experiment station. However, they are too bulky for satisfactory use as the only grain in the ration, he says. The hulls which make up approximately 30 per cent of the weight of standard oats, have practically no nutritive value and make the feed so fibrous that pigs are unable to gain rapidly on it.

In trials at the Ohio Experiment Station, pigs fed oats and tankage produced 1.08 pounds and those on corn and tankage 1.42 pounds of gain per head daily.

The effect of oats on the rate of growth was also shown in other comparisons of grain in the ration, all of the pigs receiving tankage alike. The average daily gain of those receiving corn as the only grain was 1.75 pounds; two-thirds corn and one-third oats, 1.57 pounds; one-third corn and two-thirds oats, 1.49 pounds; and oats as the only grain, .99 pound.

Oats used as the only grain were worth only three-fourths as much a pound as corn. Oats fed as one-third with corn two-thirds were worth almost ten per cent more than when fed without corn. This gave the oats a value of 85 per cent that of an equal weight of corn, or the ground oats when fed with corn was worth half as much per bushel as the corn.

Oats with the hulls sifted out, or hulled oats was worth somewhat more than corn. They are an efficient feed, especially when included in the ration for starting young pigs.

PUREBREDS PAY

Bargaine in "Aristocrats" of Dairy World Boon to Farmers

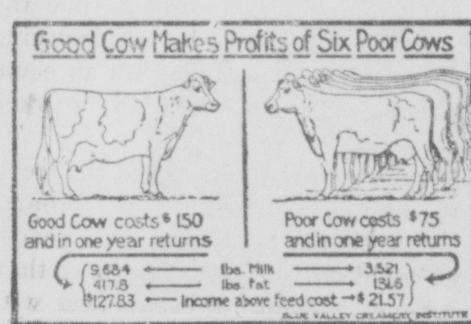

Pure-bred dairy cattle are now selling at bargain prices, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, which has just completed a survey of the dairy industry. This is certainly the time to improve herds. At no time in the past ten years has there been such a favorable opportunity for the man or woman who milks cows to acquire good blood. In 1922 pure-bred dairy bulls of all breeds averaged $222.00. Today this same pure-bred bull is being purchased for an average of $158.00. Still more marked is the decline in average prices of pure-bred cows, which in 1922 brought $211.00, but today is changing hands for $134.00.

The marked advantage of using pure-bred bulls, declares the Institute, is easily shown in a study of a recent survey of 577 farms. Those farmers who used a scrub bull from one to five years had a labor income of $198.00—less than a hired man's wages. Continuing the use of scrub bulls from five to ten years, they found themselves $243.00 in the hole. But the farmers who used pure-bred bulls from one to five years had a labor income of $709.00 and when these same pure-bred bulls were used continuously up to ten years, the labor income jumped to $1,102.00 per year.

The dairy farmer who uses good milk cows will find, as always, that they will help to make his financial position secure, carry part of the burden of his mortgages and taxes, buy education for his children, pay for the new house and barn and leave the farm itself more productive as the years roll by. Now is the opportunity of a decade to build up a pure-bred dairy herd, according to the Institute.

DOES WORK OF SIX

Tests Show How Good Cow Increases Farmer's Profits

Good dairy cows cost more than common ones, but it is not always necessary to pay big prices to get good cows, declares the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. At present prices, good dairy cows can be purchased for $150 and up, while the common kind often cost as much as $75. A group of four herds of good cows in a Wisconsin cow testing association recently yielded an income above feed cost of $127.83 per cow by producing in one year 9,684 pounds milk containing 417.8 pounds butterfat. The low cow of the same association produced 3,521 pounds milk and 131.6 pounds butterfat with an income over cost of feed of $21.57. The records of this association show that the good cow provided her owner with a yearly income over cost of feed which was six times greater than the income from the poor cow. In other words, the income from the good cow was found to be equal to that of six cows having the productive ability of the poor cow, which shows that one good cow in this instance could well take the place of six common cows. By replacing the low producing cows, the better cows not only increase the income over feed cost, but also require less work and less room in the barn and in the field and produce milk and cream much more economically because of these factors, the Institute states.

ADAPT READING TO THE CHILDISH MIND

A child's brain rarely assumes the analytical stage until he is beyond the age of ten, says John Martin, editor of "John Martin's Book, the Child's Magazine." Up to that time a child thinks in images. Inquisitiveness is the keynote. His mind should neither be forced to labor over five or six syllable words nor made to grasp such things as the wonders of nature or mechanical triumphs. Primarily, a child should be entertained with reading matter which he himself can read and understand. Early in the life of a child, the ego of accomplishment awakes and clamors for an opportunity to assert itself. Only is this chance offered when the child's reading matter is of the type which he can grasp himself.

In reading, a child should early make friends with the various characters encountered in the stories. If the story is truly that of a child, he will shortly speak of his book friends as though they really existed. When his playmates have gone away, the child will be content to turn to his story-book companions. Difficulty in diction and thought are taboo with John Martin. He writes, not to the brain of the child, but to the heart.

AMUSEMENTS

As neat and clever a piece of comedy construction as the silver screen has reflected for a long time is "Blonde or Brunette," the Paramount picture starring Adolphe Menjou, which came to the Met theater today, with Greta Nissen as "the blonde" and Arlette Marchal, "the brunette."

The film is admirably suited, in characterization, plot, story and locale to Menjou's talents and personality. He is cast as a young Paris barrister who tiring of the gay life, decides to settle down and marry.

When his blonde bride falls under the influence of Parisian gayety he finds that life is just a little more hectic than ever, so he turns for solace to a more sedate and restful brunette. From here, the treatment of the eternal triangle proceeds in adroit and hilarious fashion.

The climax comes when all points of the triangle are domiciled at the country home of grandmother, who is supposedly in blissful ignorance of any rift in the original domestic arrangement.

Whether the blonde or brunette finally wins her man is something that should be told only from the screen. Sufficit to say that the contest and resulting complications make fascinating entertainment that should not be missed by discriminating movie goers.

Adolphe Menjou plucks new laurels by his superb performance. Greta Nissen and Arlette Marchal are brilliant in their respective roles.

Mary Carr, as the peace-making grandmother, has an important part in which she acquires herself with distinction. Others contributing excellent performances are Paul Weigel, Evelyn Sherman, Andre Lanoy, and Henri Menjou, brother of the star.

John McDermott adapted the screen play from a French farce, "An Angel Passes," by Jacques Bosquet and Henri Falk.

Will you say it just for the day or through the years to come?

NOW comes the time of year when the telltale stethoscope finds hearts more aflutter, when pulses beat with ardency renewed.

And no wonder! For just in the offing is St. Valentine's, the day set apart by the Saint of Hearts for all true lovers... filial, fraternal and romantic... to play the roles of Romeo and Juliet, or of Darby and Joan.

In such a crisis, adolescent youth seeks an outlet for his welling emotion in a bit of lacy paper, a red heart or two, a sugary quatrain or sonnet.

But we elderly folk, of twenty and beyond, must find a more lasting and worthy expression of our sentiment.

There is no finer gift than an Elgin Watch. Featured in a wide style variety and sold at prices ranging from $15 to $1700.

Fortunately, that's not hard to do. For just 'round the corner is a jeweler, and he deals in valentines of four dimensions... Beauty, Utility, Permanence and Value.

Valentines wrought of gold and silver or set with a precious jewel... valentines need not necessarily... yet enduring, to be admired and cherished through the years.

Tokens that link the lovely with the lasting, the precious with the practical... a ring... a pin... perhaps a silver vase... or best of all, an Elgin watch.

A gift that will serve the minutes and the hours, and survive the decades. A gift, indeed, that will "say it for a lifetime."

CAL SHOWS CLASS, SAYS WILL ROGERS

Brownwood, Tex., Feb. 25.
Editor Ohio State Journal:
Well, Calvin vetoed the Mary McHaugen bill.

Nobody can ever accuse the president of being a "yes" man. I am with him on this. I never could see why the bill raised the price on a hog and not on a cow, raised it on an ear of corn, but not on a potato.

You see, that shows you where class will tell. The old congressmen and senators got scared by the vetoes back home, but Cal went through.

That's the difference between a big man and little ones.

A dirt farmer who has to fertilize.

GRADE CROSS- ING PLANS

Columbus, Feb. 25.—(UP).—The state highway department today made public a tentative program for the next five years.

Eliminations of 200 crossings in the state, striking at the most dangerous road and rail intersections, was contemplated in the program. Included in the plans are the following in Ross county:

B. & O. at Lyndon on State Road No. 27.

B. & O. two miles northwest of Austin on State Road No. 11.

D. T. & L. 3 1/4 miles northeast of Bainbridge on State Road No. 26.

B. & O. two miles southeast of junction of State Roads Nos. 26 and 11, on State Road No. 26.

B. & O. 1 3/4 miles southeast of Chillicothe on State Road No. 11.

Lacy Chiffon Negligee Has Jacket Developed in Lighter Shade Than Skirt

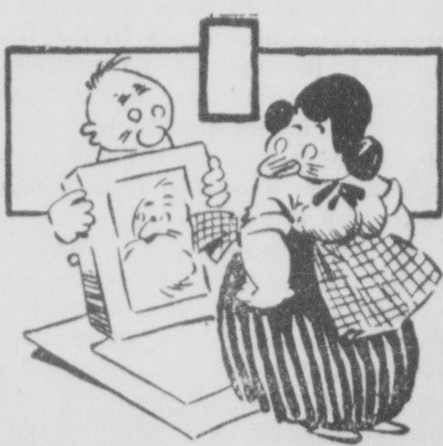

WITH outer apparel in daytime clothes almost entirely in the sportswear field, the negligee which is daintily feminine in character is of more than usual interest.

This charming feminine negligee of lacy fluffiness is worn by Patricia Avery, motion picture actress, in "Annie Laurie," in which she appears in support of Lillian Gish, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star.

The jacket is of shell pink chiffon entirely embroidered with rows of lace. The skirt is of a darker shade pink chiffon. The skirt scalloped and the jacket has a daisy pocket fashioned entirely of lace.

A WEIGHTY SUBJECT

Pewee—Where do you want me to hang this portrait of your father?

His Wife—Don't try to lift that portrait. You'll strain your back. Father weighed two hundred and fifty pounds when he had it painted.

Scalloped Edge Adds to Little Taffeta Dress

For the completion of the child's wardrobe this little outfit is necessary for the winter season. The feature of the smart little taffeta dress here shown is the scalloped edge at neck and bottom of the skirt. It is fine for party wear.

Ensembles Feature of Popular Formal Mode

The harmonious fashion of ensembles is very apparent in the evening mode, and the most effective and striking costumes for the evening consider not alone the dress, but also the wrap which is to be worn with it.

At the fashionable Cirque Moliere, the annual amateur circus which Monsieur Moliere, the well-known Parisian, gives for his friends, many examples of this interesting tendency were displayed. Georgette and chiffon frocks were worn under velvet coats and capes, either of the same color as the dress, or lined with its material.

From Paris comes a delightful wrap of soft smoke-gray velvet lined with delicate pink chiffon. It is worn with a chiffon dress in the same shade of pink. The deep-pointed yoke formed by gathers is the distinctive feature of this lovely wrap. Although extremely full, the material falls in graceful folds, so soft and supple is the texture of the velvet.

Rich materials, and especially velvet, were featured in all of the Paris collections of evening wraps. At Martiat et Armand "the wraps generally executed in velvet were trimmed with lame yokes and sleeves." Chantal showed evening coats made of rich lames and broches and lined with vivid-colored crepes. These were richly trimmed with fur or ostrich feathers, forming a wide border, a large shawl collar and cuffs.

Suede or Glace Used for Dainty Hand Bags

Wine-red suede or glace leather makes the newest hand bags, capacious, flat bellow bags, usually rectangular and with strap handles. These cheerful bags, worn with the red umbrella and a red hat or perhaps only a red pin in a dark hat, seem to make bright the rainiest day and the most somber rainy-day costume.

The zipper closing retains its popularity both for the large, flat, handled bags and for the little, round, barrel affairs, and the leathers are as extravagantly varied and as cunningly combined as they have been lately on shoes. Suede, serpent skin, pin seal, kangaroo, calf hide with the hair left on, alligator and pigskin are only a few of the leathers one encounters among these purses.

Among the more elaborate purses for the afternoon, various new modes sewn to a jaw frame of precious metal have little compartments built into either side of the metal top, one side opening to disclose a place for, and the other holding the inevitable vanity articles.

Leather Coats Have Large Patch Pockets

Most of the leather coats have large patch pockets of fur and are usually belted with a narrow strap of the leather, or of patent leather in a different color after the fashion of a man's hunting jacket. Fur-lined leather coats in the hip-length model are worn chiefly by misses and young women of slim figure, and some are in gay colors printed in plaids and checks. These are practical and pretty with the kilt skirt of cloth or velvet.

A serviceable coat of distinction is made of tweed, cheviot or other stylish material, and lined with fur. The weaves are shown in mixtures, in broken checks, and undefined diagonals.

Lined with fur they afford protection in the coldest weather. Some of these coats in the late models are lined with suede or kasha and have large collars, sometimes cuffs also of fur. Fur trimming has come in again very strong and few sports coats are shown without at least a collar of fur.

WINNERS

Of Semi-finals in County Basket Ball Tournament.

(By Puck.)

Boys:—
Scioto 2 14 14 16
Deercreek 0 2 5 7

In the first quarter Deercreek held Scioto down to a 210 score by passing the ball among themselves. Both teams used the five man defense and did not attempt many shots at the basket. Scioto lacked much of showing the championship form displayed in former games. Trego was as fast as usual and was the big factor in Scioto's scoring. Considering the limited number upon which to draw, Copeland's team made a very creditable showing.

New Holland ... 7 16 24 36
Monroe 8 10 12 13

Monroe outplayed and outscored New Holland during the first quarter. New Holland's passing was of the erratic type and their shooting was not much better. From then on they played a more careful and headier game and gradually pulled away until during the last quarter they registered baskets with fearful rapidity and unerring precision. The New Hollanders' play was not up to standard and they appeared unable to get going. Johnny Dick couldn't cash in on the long shots last night and most of the points were scored close to the board.

Girls:—
Walnut 4 4 9 14
Monroe 9 17 22 26

This was a harder fought and more hotly contested game than the final score would indicate. Monroe had it on the Walnut girls in weight, ranginess and reach, but the Walnut girls were game through and through and never stopped fighting. In the last half Walnut outplayed and outscored the Monroe girls, but they could not overcome the lead that Monroe had piled up in the first half. Captain Nothstine and Evelyn Heskett led the way for Walnut, while the Pontius twins and Meriam Brust excelled on the Monroe sextette. Both teams played the cleanest brand of ball and there was not the least sign of crabbiness on either side.

Muhlenberg 6 14 22 32
Ashville 2 3 8 11

It was generally conceded that Muhlenberg should win this tilt, but Ashville made an honest effort to come through with all odds against them. No individuals on either team stood out as stars, but Muhlenberg's pass-work and scoring ability was evident to even the most casual observer. However, Muhlenberg will have to put up a much better game tonight if they expect to take Monroe's scalp.

Notes.

Basket ball has its ameliorating social as well as its physical benefits. Two good Christian women who had not spoken for twenty years though members of the same church, were seen to vigorously embrace after their team had won a hair-raising game by a last minute basket.

The girls' games have been, on the whole, far more interesting than the boys. This is due probably to the situations that arise from miscellaneous drawings which oftentimes pair strong teams with weaker ones.

Some of the most-touted of our county stars have failed signally to display the kind of basket ball that earned them such a reputation.

Region of Intense Heat

The climate of Death valley, Calif., is due in a measure to its configuration. It consists of a long, narrow parallel valley, considerably below sea level. The Panamint mountains shut out from it the moist winds of the Pacific, so that in August there is less than one-half of 1 per cent of moisture in the atmosphere.

THE BENEFICENT HIGHWAYMAN

The hold-up man, the modern version of the highwayman, has, it appears from an investigation made by the Department of Manufacture of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, been chiefly responsible for the growing abandonment of the old method of paying employees in cash.

It was found that more than one hundred large concerns have adopted the practice within the past year of paying by check as a safeguard against robbery and a protection to human life, the latter being necessary because the safety of the men handling payrolls cannot be insured although the payrolls themselves can.

The replies from the establishments that have adopted the practice indicate that benefits other than those aimed at have been achieved. It has been found, for example, that the employee is encouraged to keep his money in the bank; that thrift is encouraged, and that certain other advantages both to employer and employees are obtained.

"In brief," says the Department, "it seems to be viewed as a more orderly and businesslike way of handling this important problem."

ONLY KNOWN BIRD WITH "BOBBED" TAIL

A representative of a tribe of birds which includes the only kind in the world known to practice self-decoration has arrived at the London zoo.

It is a Carthaginian motmot, from South America, and its seemingly concealed relative is known as the Racket-tailed motmot.

Racket-tails are not uncommon as natural adornments of many birds, but the motmot produces his artificially, for he nibbles away the vane on each side of the shaft on the two middle tail feathers until the desired shape is obtained.

If excessive vanity prompted the motmot's ancestors to nibble their tails, as is probable, this would account for the habit becoming instinctive.

It is evident, at any rate, that the females learned to regard a racket-tailed suitor as specially desirable, otherwise the "fashion" would have died out.

Watchful Waiting

When Arthur Bernstein was managing vaudeville he naturally got sick to death of the flamboyant ads that heralded some of the acts. His pet aversion was the so-called "death-defying" thrill that wound up the show, because it sounded so big and meant so little.

One day Manager Norman Whistler said: "You don't like those acts and yet I notice you sit through them, show after show."

"Well," said Arthur, "the rope might break, and I really think if I could see one acrobat killed I would die happy."

OPEN DEATH VALLEY TO MOTOR TOURISTS

Winter Months in Sink Permitted to Sightseers.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Death valley, noted as the most desolate, the most dangerous and one of the strangest places on this earth, the lowest point on the American continent, is opened up to tourist sight-seeing traffic. Automobile busses criss-cross the great sunken desert and transcontinental tourists may, in comfort, cross the mysterious valley which used to mean death to the emigrant who, beguiled by its numerous mirages and its stretches of salt, which looked like cool water, attempted to cross its desert wastes.

May 15 is to see the last tourist of the season out of the valley. Hereafter, the season will open in the fall, but always, by May 15 the last tourist must be out of the place. For Death valley, so pleasant in the winter, becomes a perfect inferno with the return of the summer sun and temperatures run up to as high as 140 degrees and more. A modern hotel has been built at Furnace creek, and this will be headquarters for the tourists.

Pullman cars are operated to Death valley junction, and gasoline motor cars on the Death Valley railroad go to within 12 miles of the entrance to the valley itself. From this point the automobile busses operate to and through the valley of death. The Death Valley railroad, Tonopah and Tidewater railroad and Union Pacific railroad is the combination which has opened up Death valley to tourist traffic.

Many Perished in Valley.

Death valley's significant name was given it by the very first party of emigrants to look down upon it from the surrounding mountains. There were 30 men, women and children in the party. They thought they saw a silvery stream of water and attempted to cross. When they reached the stream it was just white salt and not a drop of water. With the full fury of the summer sun heating the sandy furnace to 140 degrees, and no water, the trek became a panic. Wagons, cattle, everything was abandoned and groups spread along the Panamint mountain range at the western edge trying to find water or egress from the inferno.

About a dozen of the party got through Emigrant Wash, found sweet water and survived. That was in 1850. In 1860, ten years later, a prospecting party under Dr. Darwin French, found wagons, guns, cooking utensils, children's toys, etc., lying just where they had been abandoned. They also found human skeletons, some within 300 yards of a water hole. The skeletons were buried by the party.

There are many graves scattered over the desert. Few names are on the markings. "He ran out of water" is the usual lettering.

But when one of that first party of emigrants got to water he found in his hand a piece of pure silver ore. He remembered breaking the shiny "rock" from a ledge of the same material.

That little piece of silver was made into a sight for the finder's rifle. And since that time that lost silver mine has been known as the "Gunsight" mine. Hundreds of prospectors have searched for it. None have found it. Many have found death instead.

Hunt Lost Mines.

But still there are prospectors in Death valley, and tourists there will see some of them—in fact, will almost certainly be asked to "grubstake" some old desert personality. "Breyfogle's butte of gold is just over the mountains here somewhere," the tourist will be told. "I saw it one day a-shining in the sun, but I couldn't get to it. But I'll find it some day. Worth more than all the gold coin in the world, too."

And the "Breyfogle" legend is but one of many. There are many lost mines of fabulous richness still awaiting rediscovery in Death valley.

Three hundred and ten feet below the level of the sea is the floor of its deepest point, and from this point up 11,045 feet above sea level rises Telescope peak, and a little farther on is Mount Whitney, 14,501 feet in elevation, the highest point in the United States. From the same point the tourist will see the lowest and the highest points in the country.

Healing Dressing for Pets With Sore Feet

Colliers and hunting dogs often become sore-footed when they have run far on hard, dry, rough or stony ground. There is a feverish condition and the inflammation gives rise to an exudate of inflammatory lymph which gums the hair and causes intense irritation. The dog persistently licks and even bites the affected parts, and aggravates the irritation, or increases the infection. This condition has been troublesome to treat, as a dog promptly licks off any medicament applied and eats a poultice or tears off cotton and bandage dressings. But there is a good plan of treating such conditions and the dog is kept from licking or disturbing the part by the taste and smell of the "dressing" used. It consists in a mixture of pine tar, flowers of sulphur and oil of tar. Melt the tar, stir in the oil of tar and then stir in the flowers of sulphur, while the tar is yet warm and thinned. Immerse the sore feet in the mixture twice a day, and it may also be applied to any mangy or sore spot of the skin with good effect.

Robin Keeps Faith

Ornithologists who claim that infidelity prevails among birds, more especially wrens, should be informed that robins have a far different view of matrimony. Two Oshkosh hunters found two robins, both in distress. Upon examination they discovered the female was too badly crippled to fly and, rather than desert his mate, the male remained in the north, facing almost certain death from starvation and cold, as Wisconsin winters are no milder than those of northern Michigan. The birds were fed and are being cared for.—Detroit Free Press.

A Difficulty of Middle Age

Perhaps the hardest time for a middle-aged man to think he feels just as young as he used to be is just after he has gone up a couple of flights of stairs at a fairly brisk pace.—Ohio State Journal.

"POSITIVE AGITATION"

"Clean enough"—or C-L-E-A-N?

Can there be a question of how clean a rug ought to be—particularly when that rug is your baby's play-place? Think . . . tiny fists clutch the soft nap . . . rub sleepy eyes . . . then, perhaps, furnish a solacing thumb to chew upon! Decidedly, here, "clean enough" must mean clean!

The new HOOVER It BEATS... as it Sweeps... as it Cleans

The new Hoover, by reason of its revolutionary cleaning principle "Positive Agitation," in the ordinary cleaning time beats out and sweeps up from carpetings MORE THAN TWICE AS MUCH DIRT as even the former Hoover. You want this extra speed and extra cleanliness; we will deliver you the new Hoover for only $6.25 down, with the balance in easy monthly payments.

Early Summer Predicted by Aged Indian Oracle

Hogalam, Wash.—The Northwest states will soon be basking in the sunshine of an early summer, according to "Circus Jimmy" Taholah, centenarian and seer of the Quinault Indian tribe. With the exception of a few rainstorms, no more bad weather is in store, says the aged Redskin. "No more ice, no more snow, no more cold, soon come warm weather, pretty quick," declared the venerable oracle. "Next month, plenty rain, warm then. Plenty warm—fine."

Dealing With Indolent Arthur

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

THERE was no one in the entire set, called society, of Newdean but looked on with varying shades of interest at the growing attachment between Eva Winter and Arthur Tompkins.

"I can't see what you find so attractive in a man who cares more for his pipe and dog and a walk through the muddy fields than he does for a good day's business. I think he's indolent, if you ask me," said members of her own family.

"Perhaps Arthur's body is indolent but his mind is not," Eva once remarked, "and besides, I'm neither engaged nor married to him yet." By which saying she proved that she was at least considering Arthur as a future life companion.

Arthur himself was a quiet, slimly built young man with eyes that were too often aglow with dreams to be really successful in the world of filthy lucre.

But there was no slightest doubt that business acumen, ambition and sense of material responsibility were sadly lacking. He had, however, a strongly developed sense of moral responsibility and could never be persuaded that the outer needs of the body were half so important as a decently clothed mind.

Eva sometimes laughed at herself and wondered just where her association with Arthur might lead her.

"Most likely to a five-room house in the suburbs and the state commonly called 'Love in a cottage,'" she told herself.

Meantime Arthur wasn't worrying about anything. He wasn't the worrying kind and usually had a head too full of happy-go-lucky thoughts to ponder darkly on supposed troubles. The world was a good place to live in if one just realized it.

Fortunately Arthur had a slight income, the result, no doubt, of a more money-making relative somewhere in the past. It enabled him to lose, quite happily, most positions he succeeded in getting.

When Eva raved at him for his indifference, in a perfectly ladylike but none the less irritated manner, Arthur only grinned at her.

"Eva, you can't be beautiful, and lose your temper that way—and if I'm not annoyed at losing my job, I don't see why you—"

"But how do you ever expect to get anywhere in life?"

"By 'anywhere' I suppose you mean money, motors, one or two country homes and continual chasing after amusement. It's you, Eva, who will never get anywhere in life. You are straining after something to be got through external conditions—while I—well, I have found life to be full of joy and a happiness that loss of material things will not rob me of."

"Am I a material thing?" questioned Eva.

"Sometimes," said Arthur promptly. "and sometimes you touch the fringe of that other world where love and honesty and the soul of things count—you are adorable when the spirit takes possession and at those moments I want you for my wife and life companion more than I have ever wanted anything."

"And when I'm material?"

"Then I'm not so sure," said Arthur. "Pots of money and one who's always seeking happiness in external things, would never make me happy—I would not want to subject what I know to be my higher and better self to continual conflict."

"Yes, but that higher self of yours couldn't even support me comfortably."

"Oh yes, it could. I would have no respect for myself if I loved a woman whom I could not take proper care of. There would be no flock of motors, nor variety of homes scattered about all corners of the earth but the very type of the love I have for you would make up for the lack of them. I doubt if any of the men who say they love you would be happy with you if they had to live in a log cabin all their days with you."

"And you?" Eva knew Arthur to be quite right about her men friends. Certainly they would not take kindly to poverty.

"If you were slant-eyed and had scraggy hair and lived in a tenement I should still realize that I had found the kingdom—if the real you—loved me."

"Arthur," said Eva slowly, "I'm beginning to see real happiness as you interpret it. I have been absorbed lately in some exquisite essays on 'Friendship,' 'Love' and 'The Inner Life' that have just come out in book form. They ran in the newspaper first and I saved them all in a scrap book. They have made me do a lot of thinking and perhaps—" she looked into Arthur's eyes and wanted not to hurt him, but added: "I should like to meet the writer of those essays before I make up my mind about marrying you. Something—a great force has spoken to me through them and lifted me up into a realm I did not realize existed. It seems to me when soul speaks to soul like that there must be some powerful kinship." Eva looked for the expression she feared to see in his eyes but there was only a tremendous glow.

"Eva, darling," he questioned softly, "don't you ever read the dedication in books? Read that one and you will get some idea of the author's love for you."

And Arthur blinked at the swift light in Eva's eyes.

DARBYVILLE TEMPERANCE WOMEN MEET

The Theme Was Frances E. Willard--Next Session at Mrs. Robert Hott's

The Darbyville Woman's Christian Temperance Union, together with the Ladies' Aid, met with Mrs. Marima Miller Wednesday, February 16, and after devotionals and business the following program was rendered:

Frances E. Willard was born at Churchville, New York, in 1839, educated in the Northwestern university at Evanston, the largest suburb of Chicago, where she achieved the post by "honest, hard work dean of the woman's department of the university and professor of rhetoric."

In 1862 Miss Willard wrote her first book, "Nineteen Beautiful Years." "A Great Mother" is, perhaps, her best book. It was her expectation to be literary woman in connection with her work as college professor, she also wrote "How to Win," a history of Evanston and many others. How she came into the work: Miss Willard read of the Crusade in the Chicago Post, edited by her brother, Oliver, and because absorbingly interested in it as well as her mother. In 1874 was a time of real heartbreak for Miss Willard on account of difficulties at the university. She resigned her position as dean and professor. In August she received a letter from Mrs. L. S. Rounds, who led the crusade movement in Chicago asking her to come to Chicago and act as president of the local W. C. T. U. On the same day she received this letter she also received a definite offer from the principal of a ladies' school in New York City offering her $2,500 a year if she would act as preceptress teaching a little or as much as she pleased but exercising a helpful influence over the young ladies. She was entirely without income, yet so profound was the impression that God called her to the work of the W. C. T. U., that she at once wrote to New York declining Dr. Van Norman's offer and to Mrs. Rounds accepting the position of president of the W. C. T. U. of Chicago.

It was indeed well for the world that Frances Willard thus decided. No woman has ever done so much to lift humanity heavenward. Best beloved, God crowned.

Little incidents in the life of Frances E. Willard were read by Mrs. Bernice Ginder. The "small sweet courtesies" meant so much to her and she never failed to extol them saying: "Why it not as sensible to teach good manners as a theory and await as it is to teach singing, I cannot understand. In a democracy like ours good manners as a theory and an art as it peculiarly attended in all the schools."

"Womanliness first—afterward what you will," was the gospel which safeguarded her life.

Other incidents in the life of Frances E. Willard by Mrs. Mirima Miller. When her brother, Oliver, drove with his father to Janesville to vote and "Frank" turning to Mary, her sister asked "why can't we vote?" Of course we ought to but don't you go and say so, for then we would be called strong minded.

"The Willard pledge was read by Mrs. Hattie McKinley. Her patriotic peace loving nature early manifested itself. In the big family Bible at Forest home Frances' mother had carefully written a temperance pledge and after their parents had signed it the young folks affixed their names. Oliver, Frances and Mary. They pledged perpetual hate to all that can intoxicate."

Tribute to Frances E. Willard by Emma Hill: Live unto God. Not for one land she lived Her love, heaven fed compassed the world She wore a mystic thread Enduring, strong from heart to heart to build soul consecrated Then in emblem turned white ribbon in a knot of love.

Frances Willard statue, by Mrs. Jennie Dick. Mrs. Dick said that when they visited Washington D. C. last summer that they were in Statuary hall of the Capitol building, the guide took Glendal's hand and led her up to Miss Willard's statue and said, "this is the most wonderful woman who ever lived." She is the only woman to be thus honored.

The W. C. T. U., will have a market the second Saturday in March in Circleville. Their next meeting will be with Mrs. Robert Hott the third Wednesday in March. The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Wilda Carpenter assisted by Mrs.

Anna Carpenter the second Wednesday in March.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Ida Secoy.

HARTMAN THEATER.

"Sweet Lady," a big musical comedy attraction one of the newest and most successful of this season, is booked for one week only at the Hartman theater, Columbus, starting next Monday night, with popular matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

"Sweet Lady" has been playing in New York and is on its way to the Illinois theater, Chicago, for a long run. Columbus is the only city that will see it enroute and the only other one to see it until it finishes its long run there. The opinion of the papers in and around Broadway is that here is a real hit, with real dancing and plenty of snappy music and a splendid cast.

The cast is headed by Gus Shy and Jane Taylor. Miss Taylor is a diminutive soprano who has played on Broadway in such successes as "The Rose Girl" George M. Cohan's "The O'Brien Girl" "Sally, Irene and Mary" and "My Girl" at the Vanderbilt theater. She has been featured in these and many other musical successes.

Others in the cast are Juliette Day, Harry Pacy, Jeannette Fox Lee, last seen in Columbus as Charmaine in "What Price Glory," John Kaen, Len Penn, George Schiller and William Roselle. There is a chorus of forty and a specialty dancing team of six girls.

Special attention will be paid to out of town mail orders. Send them in now with self addressed stamped envelopes. Don't miss this show as it is promised as one of the brightest of the season.

Poet's Error

Literally "derring do" means "daring to do." But Spenser mistakenly used it as a noun phrase and it has been popularly used ever since to mean daring feats or desperate courage. Spenser says: "Drad for his derring doe and bloody deed."—Pathfinder Magazine.

So Talking Is Hot Air
A physicist has calculated that if 1,000,000 persons were to talk steadily and the energy of their voices were converted into heat, they would have to talk an hour and a half to produce enough heat to make a cup of tea.
